DESCRIPTION OF SERVICES
SEMILLAS COUNSELING & WELLNESS LICENSED CLINICAL SOCIAL WORKER, INC.
November 1, 2024 through June 30, 2026

Program Title:

Planting Seeds of Wellness/Sembrando Semillas de Bienestar: a community introduction to culturally rooted somatics and horticulture-assisted wellness practices.

Project Description:

The program provides trauma informed horticulture-based and somatic therapeutic workshops and a healing knowledge conference in Ventura County. Services are facilitated by licensed psychotherapists in collaboration with culturally-rooted horticulture and somatic practitioners who reflect the community they serve.

This program increases access to culturally-rooted, nature-based mental health practices for under-resourced communities with particular emphasis on Mexican, Spanish-speaking, Latine, and Black/African-American communities of Ventura County.

This program increases participant knowledge of foundational nature-based and somatic mental health practices at a beginner level. Many of the no-cost/low-cost tools can be replicated beyond the workshop space, thus supporting participant mental health long-term.

This program aims to reduce the stigma immigrant, latine, and black communities have around the use of mental health practices by offering culturally rooted workshops as foundational introductions.

This program promotes collaborations with community partners by creating strategic linkages with health clinics, mental health providers, social service entities, schools, as referral sources. Additionally, by partnering with community spaces/entities such as community gardens, local farms and community-based organizations that offer access to nature and/or community spaces, the program increases participant familiarity and/or trust of accessible community spaces. Through building these bridges the program expands participant engagement and connections with existing entities and spaces, increasing participant protective factors that support mental health, reduce mental health symptoms and prevent the need for a higher level of care.

Nature-based therapy and somatic practices create a return to safety, autonomy, and internal power. This is true especially for individuals of communities impacted by acute, chronic, and complex trauma, the stress of structural racism, and adverse childhood experiences. As such, this program aims to provide participants with foundational tools to regulate the nervous system, improve mood, and increase perceived self-efficacy and resiliency as determined by participant self-report via participant surveys.

Moreover, expanding participant's repertoire of no-cost/low-cost mental health tools, and reducing the stigma of their use, increasing knowledge of and familiarity with community spaces, and building opportunities for social connections, promotes mental health, and increases protective factors that serve as buffers against mental health decline and aide in reducing the need for a higher level of care.

This program has a small office in Oxnard. The program will establish a physical location in Ventura County that serves as a hub for horticulture-based and somatic services. A space will be developed that provides a range of wellness and mental health offerings/aids in reducing the stigma of mental health, enables trust and familiarity in the community, improves service access, and provides a safe physical space that supports social connections.

Description of Services:

The program will provide participants with access to nature through horticulture-assisted interventions and nature immersion. Working with the elements (earth, air, fire, water) and trauma-informed somatic practices (breathing techniques, culturally-affirming meditation, walking in nature, grounding/earthing, etc.), services will help participants reconnect to their physical body, regulate their nervous system, calm their mind, unlock stored trauma, and return to feelings of safety.

The program will provide multiple "entry-points" for participants to access mental health wellness tools.

- A. The Sembrando/Planting Sessions: Twenty (20) Community Workshops (Sixty (60)-minute sessions) are intended for persons who may be unfamiliar with mental health concepts and/or tools to support their mental health. These will be held across Ventura County community spaces and/or the CONTRACTOR's' office space. The workshops will serve as an introduction to foundational horticulture-assisted mental health tools and somatic practices. They will be geared for a beginner and offer trauma-informed, accessible, practical, and supportive mental health tools. Sessions will be facilitated by a licensed clinician and/or in collaboration with a practitioner of somatic/horticulture practices across Ventura County.
- B. The Enraizando/Rooting Sessions: Five (5), Four (4)-part series (twenty (20) sessions in total), Sixty (60) minute sessions will be held in Ventura County community spaces and/or the Semilla's office space. These are intended for participants who are ready to engage in a more regular practice of horticulture-assisted and somatic mental health practices. This will be an open group format for community participants. While participation in the entire series are encouraged, it is acknowledge that accessibility and time are factors in accessing care. As such, drop-ins will be welcome. Sessions are facilitated by a licensed clinician and/or in collaboration with a practitioner of somatic/horticulture practices across Ventura County.

- C. Planting Seeds of Wellness Conference and Resource Fair/Conferencia y Feria de Recursos Sembrando Semillas de Bienestar: will be held by June 2026. Conferences are approximately four (4)-hour live events, once in a West Ventura County community location, and once in an East Ventura County community location. These will provide experiential learning opportunities, platicas (community healing talks), and a vendor fair which provides information of community resources that support mental health.
- D. Two-Hour Training with VCBH Staff-Administration: will occur to review programming outcome and recommendations for incorporating culturally affirming horticulture and somatic practices in treatment.

Program's Primary Purpose:

The program introduces culturally-rooted approaches to the mental health system, providing a change to existing practices in the field of mental health and their application to under-served populations, including but not limited to, Spanish-speaking latine and African Americans. The program promotes a community driven practice to the mental health system that has been successful in a non-mental health context.

Project Goals and Outcomes:

In whole, this program will aim to increase protective factors that serve to support mental health, reducing the need for higher levels of care. This program aims to service historically underserved groups including, but not limited to, the Mexican/latine, Spanish-speaking, and African American populations of Ventura County. Nature-based therapy and somatic practices create a return to safety, autonomy, and internal power. These practices have been shown to be of benefit for individuals and communities impacted by acute, chronic, and complex trauma, the stress of structural racism, and adverse childhood experiences.

Through participation in the program, individuals served will:

- Engage in non-stigmatizing, culturally-rooted alternative mental health services;
- Gain foundational tools to regulate the nervous system;
- Increase perceptions of self-efficacy;
- Improve mental health markers (e.g. mood, anxiousness);
